

You have come across the following text on the website www.current_issues.org.

Many people have lost touch with the food they consume. They no longer know where it comes from, how it is grown, or even how it is cooked.

Share your views on this issue with us and take part in our writing competition! The best article will be published on our website in August and the author will be invited to the Salone del Gusto in Italy, one of the biggest food and drink festivals in the world.

All articles should be emailed to writingcompetition@current_issues.org. The deadline for entries is June 30th.

You have decided to take part in the competition. In your article you should:

- give reasons why people have lost touch with the food they consume
- discuss the consequences of this development
- suggest how shops can raise people's awareness for healthy food

Give your article a title. Write around 300 words.
